

Synopsis

All About Giant Pandas + Stamps

Purpose of exhibit:

I am going to show most of my collection of Giant Panda stamps. I am showing these because Pandas are my favorite animal and these are some of the first stamps I collected. I set up my exhibit showing stamps from around the world with Giant Pandas on them, and with information about Giant Pandas. This is my first exhibit, and it is a youth one.

Collecting Challenges:

I have only been collecting stamps for about a year. I have a lot of stamps in my collection, but there are a lot more I need to get.

What is Presented:

I am showing some of my favorite Giant Panda stamps. I planned what I wanted to say with my exhibit and then chose the stamps that related.

Organization:

I organized my exhibit into seven sections:

1. What a Giant Panda's day looks like
2. Where Giant Pandas live
3. What Giant Pandas eat
4. How Giant Pandas grow giant
5. Conservation Efforts
6. Why Giant Pandas Matter
7. Giant Panda Stamps from Around the World

I organized the stamps into these sections because it was easy to show. Also, it will hopefully teach people about Giant Pandas and stamps.

Material Highlights:

Many people don't know much about Giant Pandas, but I do! For example, did you know Giant Pandas only live in the wild in China?

Sources:

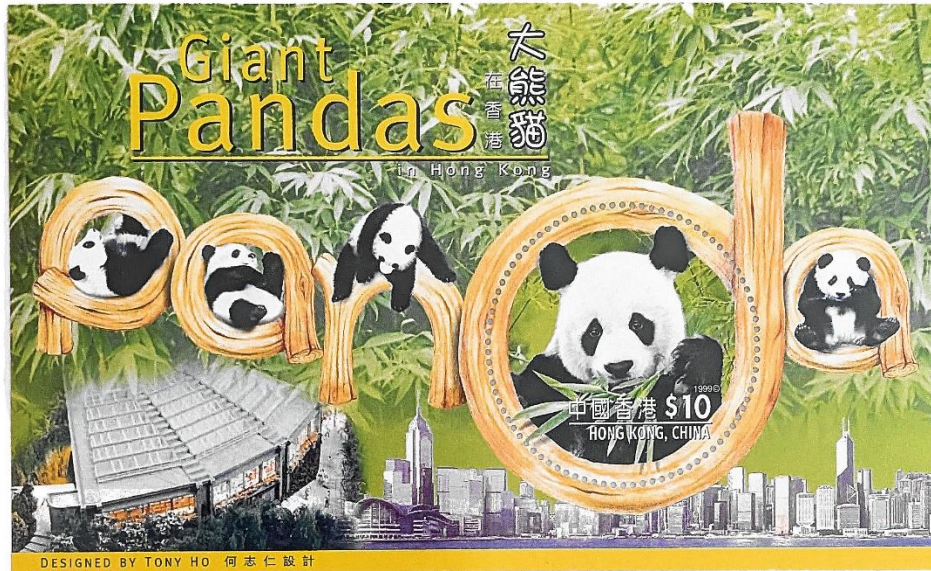

A. www.worldwildlife.org

B. American Topical Association - "Animals - Panda Bears" checklist

C. https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Giant_pandas_around_the_world

D. There will be more sources listed here as I finish my exhibit. I need to identify my stamps.

Purpose: Panda Bears are my favorite animal. I like to collect postage stamps with pandas on them. In this exhibit, I hope to teach people about Giant Pandas and show all the different ways they are shown on postage stamps.

Hong Kong issued this single circular stamp sheetlet on April 25, 1999. The sheetlet shows the playful nature of the Giant Panda bear. The stamp is unusual in its circular design.
